Understanding Complete and Incomplete Sentences

What is a Complete Sentence?

A complete sentence is a group of words that expresses a complete thought. It consists of at least a subject and a verb and conveys a clear idea to the reader. Here are key characteristics of a complete sentence:

1. Subject: The subject tells us who or what the sentence is about.

3. Complete Thought: A complete sentence must convey a complete idea that does not leave the reader hanging.

Examples of Complete Sentences:

What is an Incomplete Sentence?

An incomplete sentence, also known as a sentence fragment, is a group of words that does not express a complete thought. It may lack a subject, a verb, or both, and often leaves the reader wanting more information.

Common types of incomplete sentences include:

1. Fragments: These are often dependent clauses or phrases that cannot stand alone.
 - Example: Because I was late.
2. Missing Subjects or Verbs: Sentences that lack either a subject or a verb.
 - Example: Running through the park.

3. Dependent Clauses: These are clauses that rely on an independent clause to form a complete thought.

- Example: When the rain stopped.
